ANIMALS OF THE DESERT

COYOTES live in a hole or a den. Their den protects them from the heat and the wind. Coyotes eat almost anything and hunt during the day or night.

The color of the WESTERN DIAMONDBACK RATTLESNAKE blends with its background. It can "feel the heat" of its prey, so it can hunt in the day or the night.

The DESERT TORTOISE eats cactus, grasses, and wildflowers from March until June. They store fat and water in their bodies and dig holes to live in during the hot summers. They come out again in the autumn when the weather is cooler.
